Nash is Presented With a Shirt.

From the Toledo Blade. What is the yous uv a shirt, anyway? It don't give no warmth, and only a few square inches uv it shows. There is three yards uv cotton and a yard uv linsey-woolsey up jest for the little square that shows at the buzz. Ef you must show linea in front, why not hav a little square uv linen pinned onto the inside uv the vest wher it opens, and save all the rest?

The fact is there is altogether too much waistid in this world. The bodies and fronts uv shirts, which are totally unnecessary, cost ez much ez the school system, the school system being unnecessary. Inezmuch ez it rooins the Democratic party, I would do away with that. These two strong points uv the Republican party abolished, there would be enuf surplus in a year to pay the moshal debt and give every man in Kentucky a bar uv noo whisky, and have enuf over to slackwater Seeschi crik and make the Cross Roads an important commercial point.

There are other extravagancies wich we indulge in on whic I mite dwell, but it is unnecessary. Wat we want to do is to git down to the simplicity uv our fathers, and leave the unnecessarys alone, that we may hav the means to hav an unlimited supply of the necess-ries. Ef hev any more admirers in Illinois wich want to send me testimonials, let them omit shirts and do aintin yosef for me. Let em send me a two-gallon jug uv Illinois whisky. They must pack it in a male-keg, for a jug never wood reach me. It wood be stolen afore it got half way from the depot at Seeschi-ville. This will be aintin that will be conform, and will give me a better opinion uv my fellows and a broader idee uv our common humanity.

PETROLEUM V. NASHY, (Expectant).

"Stranger," said the stage-driver, "this was how I found out her speed: I was driving alongside the railroad track just as a big load of hotel furniture started. The freight car would'st hold it all, but they managed to squeeze everything in except a big bar mirror, which they tied to the side of the car. The mare saw her reflection in the glass and thought it was another horse spurring for the lead. You couldn't have held her back with a steam windlass. She just laid back her ears and snorted along like a twenty-inch shell. The passengers all began to get excited. They rushed out on the platform and began to make bets. The conductor stood up on a seat and began to sell pool. The engineer pulled the throttle-valve wide open and tore along at ninety-ives miles an hour. Soon the mare was abreast of the cow-catcher. At San Bruno we had half a mile the lead. Near the Six-Mile House the train was so much ahead of time that it fell through an open draw and everlastinglly mashed up—killed and 199 wounded. It was rough on the passengers, but then we distanced the train, bet yer life. About a month after I sold the mare to her present owner for $10,000.—New York World.

A Blind Boy's Invention.

A blind boy, of Montreal, has made a miniature house inside an ordinary four ounce medicine bottle. The building is made of forty pieces of wood, neatly fitted and glued together. It would puzzle a man who was not blind to get the pieces into the bottle without putting them together. The stopper of the bottle is still more wonderful. It almost fits the neck of the bottle, the top being large enough to prevent its going down too far. Near the end of the stopper, inside the bottle, below the neck, a wooden peg has been driven, which extends far enough on each side of the stopper to prevent its removal from the bottle. How this was accomplished is a mystery.

CHARLES F. EMERY, Trustee.

October 15, 1880—d&w&f

The beauties of the Democratic rule is illustrated in the "statement of the Council of Political Reform to the State Senate investigating committee, which shows that while the population of the city of New York has increased since 1860 about 50 per cent, the aggregate salaries of city officials have increased 450 per cent. And in all that time the party of economy and reform, as Tilden calls the Democracy, has been in undisputed control in that city."

The directors of the Glasgow bank, who partially exonerated their officers by undergoing an entirely inadequate sentence of imprisonment, do not appear to be utterly brokenhearted by that humiliating experience. One of them, who seems to have saved something from the wreck, has sufficient sense of the beautiful remaining, like Peter B. Sweeney, to have made his exile pleasant, and has purchased an estate picturesquely situated in contentment and peace.

Beecher and Ingersoll.

Last Sunday Mr. Beecher preached

what he called a double sermon on doubt, infidelity, atheism and skepticism. He remembered a phrase in Ingersoll's political speech in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, in which Ingersoll expressed the very sum and substance of the gospel itself. "The trouble with Ingersoll," said he, "is this: He has selected the exorcism of human life as it has grown up in churches, and has represented the exorcism as the essence of religion. Suppose a physician, wishing to get up a museum representing the human body in all ages and conditions, should collect idiots and lunatics with wens and warts all over them; suppose that the physician should gather these into a museum and say: 'There's humanity for you, what do you think of that!' That is what Ingersoll is doing in the religious world. He has scores of true things that have been said before, but he doesn't know it. He is not widely read in theology. I'm afraid he doesn't read his bible very much. What does he read it for? I'll tell you. The dove flying over the landscape sees all that is sweet and peaceful; but when the buzzard and the vulture go abroad, the first thing they see is a loathsome carcass, and, if it is anywhere in sight, they don't fail to see it. Ingersoll sees what he is looking after."

A Personal Point.

Ex Senator Trumbull, of Illinois, was in Terra Haute a few days ago, as attorney in a railroad case. The Express gives this incident of the trial:

On Friday last, during the trial of the Narrow Gauge Railroad case, while Gen. J. C. Black was on the witness stand, the following testimony was given:

Question by Judge J. T. Gann.—Gen. Black, did you not during the session of the Democratic Convention of the State of Illinois, telegraph said Convention, declining the nomination for Governor on the ground that you had a more lucrative position on the Narrow Gauge Railroad? [Laughter.]

Answer.—No sir!

Q.—Then do you deny the "soft impeachment," and defy the "soft impeachment?" [More laughter.]

Question by Hon. Lyman Trumbull.—You would consider any position more lucrative than the position of a Democratic candidate for Governor of Illinois? [Renewed laughter.]

THE FRACAS IN THE HOUSE YESTERDAY.

The spirited scene in the House yesterday, in which Sparks, of Illinois, and Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, is thus described in the associated press report:

The discussion, which was very noisy and irate, drifted into a question as to the responsibility for demonetization, and the credit for remonetization of silver, the Democrats casting discredit on the Republicans for the former, and claiming for themselves the credit for the latter.

Mr. Reagan asked Weaver to state, categorically, whether he was in favor of paying the public debt in greenbacks.

Mr. Weaver replied that the Greenback party proposed not to violate any contract existing between the government and the bondholders.

Mr. Reagan.—That is exactly what the Democratic party said after the passage of the laws of 1859.

Mr. Buckner asked Weaver when he had left the Republican party?

Mr. Weaver replied that he left it in 1857, just when the gentleman (Buckner) was stamping his district in favor of substituting greenbacks for national bank notes.

Mr. Weaver sent to the clerk's desk and had read a paragraph from the Independent Republican platform of 1869 in favor of the greenback currency and of paying the interest on bonds in legal money when the bonds so provided.

Mr. Reed suggested that all parties acted foolishly then, but that the Republicans had the good sense to get right.

Mr. Bland replied to Weaver's speech, in which he said that gentleman had shown his animus in attacking the Democrats, the only friends which that gentleman had in the House. [Laughter on the Republican side.] He referred to the charge made against Weaver in the last campaign that he was acting in the interest of the Republicans, and said that his action then corresponded with his speech to-day.

Mr. Weaver tried to interrupt Bland, asserting that his statements were not true.

Mr. Bland declined to yield, and went on charging Weaver with inconsistency and bad faith. He asserted that all the reform that had taken place recently in financial matters had come from the Democratic party. The Republican party might, by its assessment of office holders, and by corruption and fraud, succeed in putting down the grand old Democrat party, which stood for the right and liberties of the people, but sooner or later (several Republicans—"later") reform would come, not through the Republicans or Greenbacks, but through the Democrats. [Applause on the Democratic side of the House.]

Mr. Weaver replied to Mr. Bland, and challenged him to quote one word that he (Weaver) had said in the last campaign in favor of the Republican party. Until he could do so he should shut up. [Laughter.] He had in that campaign, arranged the Republican party, and he arranged it to-day. He repudiated the idea of having received sympathy from the Democratic party during the campaign, and said the only evidence he had of it was in the shape of a forged letter published in the New York Star, and which he believed was in the same hand writing as the Morey letter. [Laughter.]

Mr. Bland asked Weaver about his reputed interview, during the campaign, with Jay Hubbell, chairman of the Congressional Republican committee.

Mr. Weaver denied that any such interview had taken place, and charged the falsehood of that story on D. D. Lum, who, he said, had sold out to both the Republican and Democratic parties, and both parties were cheated when they bought him. [Laughter.] He did not charge inconsistency on the Democratic party itself, but on its leaders on the men who ran with the bounds and held with the bare. These were the men whom he desired to hold up to public condemnation as being unworthy to lead the opposition to the Republican party, which sought to fasten on the country the British system of perpetual debt.

Mr. Sparks got the floor, and alluded to a circumstance that had occurred during the interruptions between Weaver, Bland and others, in which Weaver had used an offensive term to him that he was "crazy." He went on in a good-natured manner to excuse the offensive remark as arising from a misunderstanding on Weaver's part of what he (Sparks) had said to call it out.

Mr. Weaver replied in the same tone of pleasantness and good humor, declining to take offense at what Sparks had said and intimating that no one could venture to insult him intentionally by ascribing falsehood to him without feeling the force of his (Weaver's) right arm. [Laughter and uproar.]

Mr. Sparks, on hearing the latter remark, changed his tone from one of pleasure to one of anger, and said: "I spurn with contempt the reach of his arm. The reach of his arm would affect me as little as it affected the last Presidential election."

Mr. Weaver (still in a jocular tone)—Well, that was sufficient. Does not the gentleman see that he ought never to open his mouth at all when he is excited—never, never? He spurns the reach of my arm. He can do so. In the temper I am in now he can do so. I would not hurt a hair of his head. [Laughter.] His apology was ample, and I accept it; but I caution him against a further use of the term "flesh-hood" or "lie." That, in Kentucky, is regarded as equal to a "flick" or a blow; and even if I was not as large as a mouse, I would assail any man who would apply such a term to me offensively. The gentleman has alluded to my weight; but I warn him that my fighting weight is 185 pounds. [Shouts of laughter.]

Mr. Sparks—Does the gentleman say that I used the word "flesh-hood"?

Mr. Weaver—So I understood.

Mr. Sparks—Oh no; yours was certainly the first offensive word.

Mr. Weaver—[Still good humoredly]—We are all right now.

Mr. Sparks—You misunderstood me. I said you were stating what was not true, and you were wanting in the qualities of a gentleman in your failing to remedy it. [Excitement and confusion.]

That was all that there was of it; but there was developed at the last election that you wanted those qualities.

Mr. Weaver—[Now thoroughly angered and excited]—I denounce the gentleman personally as a liar on the floor of the house.

Mr. Sparks—[Equally excited]—You are a scoundrel and a villain.

Mr. Weaver thereupon, amid great uproar, left the place where he was standing, and advanced menacingly toward Sparks, who, in his turn, moved towards Weaver, but both were immediately surrounded by members, who prevented them from getting to close quarters, and made them put on their coats, which each was in the act of taking off, as he advanced into the area. Of course the greatest confusion and disorder prevailed on the floor and in the galleries, but in the midst of it the speaker took the chair and called upon the sergeant-at-arms to do his duty. Just then, however, there was nothing particular to be done by that official, as the combatants had been removed by their respective friends, and there was no danger of their assaulting each other.

After the excitement had subsided, Sparks resumed the chair, the committee rose, and the house adjourned.

Mr. Weaver replied that the Greenback party proposed not to violate any contract existing between the government and the bondholders.

Mr. Reagan.—That is exactly what the Democratic party said after the passage of the laws of 1859.

Mr. Buckner asked Weaver when he had left the Republican party?

Mr. Weaver replied that he left it in 1857, just when the gentleman (Buckner) was stamping his district in favor of substituting greenbacks for national bank notes.

Mr. Weaver sent to the clerk's desk and had read a paragraph from the Independent Republican platform of 1869 in favor of the greenback currency and of paying the interest on bonds in legal money when the bonds so provided.

Mr. Reed suggested that all parties acted foolishly then, but that the Republicans had the good sense to get right.

Mr. Bland replied to Weaver's

Michael Duggan, appellant, vs. Amanda Hill; appeal; motion for a continuance overruled.

THEY GAVE BONDS.
The following named persons appeared in court this afternoon, and gave bonds for their daily appearance at the sessions of the court: Edward Harpster and Henry Shladekman, brewers; Thomas Andrews, D. W. Bremerman, John S. Campbell, Michael McMahon, Louis Farmer, John Carroll and Michael Carroll, licensed saloon-keepers; and Henry Peery, keeper of a vineyard near the St. Louis bridge. All the parties named have been indicted for violating the State liquor law.

THE CASE DECIDED.

The counsel in the assumption case of Waggoner and Murphy vs. the Decatur National Bank, are engaged in making their arguments and reviewing of the testimony. The closing argument was made by Mr. Clegg this afternoon.

At the conclusion of Mr. Clegg's argument this afternoon Judge Smith reviewed the testimony in the case at some length, and gave judgment against the Decatur National Bank in favor of H. W. Waggoner and M. P. Murphy for the full amount of their claim, $881.04, with six percent. interest. The defendants entered a motion for a new trial.

JOHN WISSEN, late of W. F. Bushell & Co., has opened a first-class boot and shoe shop in the north end of Central Block, opposite S. M. Irwin's drug store, and is now prepared to do all kinds of custom work, repairing, etc., promptly, and at the very lowest prices. Joe, who is an experienced artist, will make a specialty of the manufacture of ladies' shoes. He is well in business for himself at Indianapolis, and he will certainly succeed in his new departure. Good work guaranteed every time. See his ad. in another column.

THE Springfield Journal states that there is considerable talk among military men at the state capital about attending the inaugural ceremonies of President Garfield, at Washington in March, and, while it is more than probable that a number of the brigade and regiment officers will attend, it is quite possible that one or two companies, and perhaps a regiment, from Illinois will go. Adjutant General Hilliard is now in correspondence with the committee at Washington and the Colonels of the different commands in regard to the matter.

AN exchange states that Sarah Bernhardt, the noted actress, declares in a card that she is bound down unjustly and unmercifully by the American clergy, and announces her intention of prosecuting ministers who attack her character in the future in cities in which she is to play. A Decatur clergyman recently had something to say about the gentle Sarah, but we believe he was cute enough not to make himself liable for damages.

LINES.

Ab'l friend, the shadows lie so deep
Within the crowded haunts of men,
But up aloft mid summers glow—
Mid sun bright air and waters flow.
Our souls may meet again,

The cool savannas one by one
Are far above the common mind,
There thoughts have reared herself a home,
There tuneful songs and glad hours come,
And each may know its kind.

By fancy's viewless, magic power,
In purple shadows lying deep
Beside some everlasting tower,
That mind has builded hour by hour
Our waters' trayt may keep.

Above the sordid aims of man,
Above all selfish mean desires
Heaven burns its bright celestial fires,
Up to their light my soul aspires
Clasping thine own—as hand to hand.

Can Custom kill the soul, or place
Its stony walls 'twixt I and thee?
Can Custom still the raging sea?
Can Custom bind the wild winds free,
Or set its limits on all space?

Can Custom build a wall so high
The spirit may not overleap?
Or shut heaven's light from you or I?
Or Faith and Hope's eternity,
Or souls within its boundary keep?

Not so. Though duty fills our lives,
And homely deeds our hands employ,
Though we may toil in lowly walks—
Nothing the soul of freedom hanks
Or kills our dead, eternal joy.

Decatur, Ill., Dec. 16th, '80.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. D. Gillett, Jr., of Lincoln, was a late arrival at the St. Nicholas last night.

Hon. J. H. Pickrell, foreman of the present grand jury, departed for Chicago last night.

James A. Wilson, of DeWitt county, recently sold 110 head of cattle, realizing from them $9,000.

Judge Nelson was present at the opening of the circuit court this morning. He is now in apparent good health.

Rev. J. H. Noble, pastor of the Methodist Church at Lincoln, was in the city yesterday. He made quite a number of calls upon his many friends here.

General Secretary I. J. Davis has our thanks for a copy of the proceedings of the eight annual convention of the Y. M. C. A. of Illinois, held at Peoria last August.

Hiram B. Cole and bride arrived in the city last evening from Indianapolis. They will be at "home" at the Daniel Dustin residence, on West Main street.

Hon. John Gordon, of Jacksonville, was in the city to-day. Mr. Gordon, has been appointed and confirmed as postmaster of Jacksonville, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of D. M. Simmons.

We learn to-day that the condition of Dr. J. T. B. Stapp is somewhat alarming.

He sustained an unfortunate fall in his room recently, and thereby injured his spine.

C. B. Roach, the agent of the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific road at Midland City, formerly of McLean county, who was married three weeks ago to a young lady of Leroy, died on Sunday night of typhoid fever, aged 25 years. He was a favorite among his companions.

Col. J. Frank Wilson, of Yellville, Ark., was a visitor in the circuit court this afternoon, and was introduced to his brethren of the bar by Judge Smith. Col. Wilson is a son-in-law of Mr. David Blacklock, of Mt. Zion township, and is visiting friends in the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Shellabarger on yesterday afternoon received a cablegram from Liverpool, England, stating that Mr. Ernest W. Cooke and bride had arrived there safe and well on the morning of the 21st inst. They left New York by steamer on Dec. 11th, as had been previously arranged, and were just 10 days making the trip. The many Decatur friends of the bride and her husband, will be gratified to learn of their safe arrival in England.

Freely B. Caldwell, of this city, has received his appointment as the General Southern Passenger Agent of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Co., with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn. His territory is south of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi. This is a deserved promotion, and it gives us pleasure to announce the fact to Freely's grand army of Decatur friends.

Mrs. Dayton Dunham, the proprietress of a lately-improved and flourishing greenhouse on West Main street, just beyond the Wabash Railway track, has placed us under lasting obligations for a lovely bouquet of cut flowers, arranged in a manner that is ample proof of her skill in the decorative art. It is a charming gift, and has been greatly admired by all who have looked upon its exquisite beauty and inhaled its sweet perfume.

MARRIED.

At the Cumberland Presbyterian church, Argenta, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 21, 1880, at 6 o'clock, by Rev. Mr. Baker, Mr. Augustus Eksner and Miss Ester Brooks, both of Friends Creek township, this county.

The attendants were Miss Jennie Miller and Wm. Reeser, and Miss Mary Williams and Mr. Sinclair Drake. The church was filled with friends of the contracting parties. The wedded couple departed for Pennsylvania to-day on a visit to the bridegroom's relatives.

By Rev. W. L. Bankson, Tuesday, Dec. 21, 1880, Mr. W. D. Pickle and Mrs. Loretta C. Boardman, both of Wheatland township, this county.
